Jessie Cai, our programmer set it up in our sandbox before going live. We tweaked it to work with our SSO Saml integration. I think the link only appears on brief results regardless. I mentioned that there are some records that we can not access but there's nothing we can do about it. It's a wonderful service and I hope other institutions will be able to also take advantage of it.

A search on "flowers" brings up a lot of results if you want to look at our Primo.

Some language we shared with users:

> Due to the current COVID-19 shelter-in-place order, the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Library is currently closed and its physical collections inaccessible.

> However, due to HathiTrust membership, SJSU Library has requested and been granted Emergency Temporary Access Service (ETAS), which allows online reading access to inaccessible physical holdings. Through HathiTrust, SJSU Library users will be able to access materials that are under copyright, as well as over 6.7 million public domain and Creative Commons-licensed works. This includes access to over half of the titles in the SJSU Library's print collection.

> Our level of access is in accordance with our collection holdings; one physical copy on the shelf is equal to one available digital copy. This conforms to fair use under US copyright law. Digital access to these materials will be provided throughout the involuntary disruption to our physical services.

I provided examples to our library because we also have the HathiTrust Digital Library Full View U.S. Only collection activated in Alma, plus we have 32,000+ other records that we had set up years ago separate from this membership.

This record is an example of the ETA granted.

Please note:
Click on the link in the brief record result. The full record doesn't contain the link.
You will know it is an ETA record by the phrase: Log on at the HathiTrust website for full text access.

This example shows "online access" because this record is freely available to us from HathiTrust and doesn't involve ETA. This is part of the 32,000 records previously catalogued.

This example shows a record coming from the HathiTrust Digital Library Open Access collection (4 million available records) via the Central Discovery Index (CDI). We don't own a physical copy.
